The celebrated author Bruce Chatwin (1940 - 1989) was a nomad whose desire for adventure and enlightenment was made wholly evident by his writing, in such beloved works as In Patagonia and The Songlines. He dared to be obsessive and learned; and was, in life as in art, forever in quest of the exotic and unexpected. He moved at ease within diverse art, literary , and social circles, and traveled widely over some of the far-flung corners of Asia , Africa , South America , and Australia . This is a wonderful , and sometimes wondrous , cselection of letters to his wife , his parents, and his friends, including Patrick Leight Fermor , James Ivory , Paul Therous , Susan Sontag , and many others. He was passionate and a brilliant story-teller , telling the tale of his own life throughout , from his first week at school to his untimely death in France at the too-young age of 48. Selected and edited by his wife, Elizabeth Chatwin, and by Nicholas Shakespeare, who wrote the preface and introduction, this collection provides new perspective on Chatwin's extraordinary...
