Excerpt: . . . transform the Army from failures in Vietnam and mistakes in Grenada to victories in the streets of Panama and the dunes of Oper at ion DESERT STORM. I t was t he hardworking Boomers who won the Cold War and saved our way of life from the Evil Empire, but it was also the overworking Boomers who brought zero defects, careerism, and new accusations of micromanagement to the Army. As Boomers moved into the senior ranks of the officer corps, their driven nature flourished in the post-Cold war environment. 24 7 became the norm and bigger and better 22 QTBs became commonplace. Today, Baby Boomers dominate nearly all the leadership positions in the Army ranging from battalion commander to Chief of Staff. When junior officers complain about the Armys senior leaders, they are talking about the Boomers. Generation Xers entered the Army as the reform of the Army was nearing...
