W. W. Norton & Company. Hardcover. Book Condition: New. Hardcover. 272 pages. Dimensions: 9.3in. x 6.3in. x 1.1in. A relational approach to evaluating your suicidal clients. Given the isolating nature of suicidal ideation and actions, its all too easy for clinicians conducting a suicide assessment to find themselves developing tunnel vision, becoming overly focused on the clients individual risk factors. Although critically important to explore, these risks and the danger they pose cant be fully appreciated without considering them in relation to the persons resources for safely negotiating a pathway through his or her desperation. And, in turn, these intrapersonal risks and resources must be understood in contextin relation to the interpersonal risks and resources contributed by the clients significant others. In this book, Drs. Douglas Flemons and Leonard M. Gralnik, a family therapist and a psychiatrist, team up to provide a comprehensive relational approach to suicide assessment. The authors offer a Risk and Resource Interview Guide as a means of organizing assessment conversations with suicidal clients. Drawing on an extensive research literature, as well as their combined 50 years of clinical experience, the authors distill relevant topics of inquiry arrayed within four domains of suicidal experience: disruptions and demands, suffering, troubling behaviors, and desperation. Knowing what questions to ask a suicidal client is essential, but it is just as important to know how to ask questions and how to join through empathic statements. Beyond this, clinicians need to know how to make safety decisions, how to construct safety plans, and what to include in case note documentation. In the final chapter, an annotated transcript serves to tie together the ideas and methods offered throughout the book. Relational Suicide Assessment provides the theoretical grounding, empirical data, and practical tools necessary for clinicians to feel prepared and confident when engaging in this...
