This made her more interested than before. Every time I read or heard about any old person going to school I told her about it. This interested her very much. ., My Pupil. The work was begun in earnest about the first of June 1916, when I gave her a copy book. She began to use the book as soon as I gave it to her. She would work with her writing whenever she had time and when I went to her home she would show me her work and I would help her with anything she did not understand. Mrs. Worshim was at that time confined to the house and her writing was a pleasant pastime; for that reason...
